into her story in places like the depiction of the Martha Graham College and Jimmy, its student in English, who is the principal character in the story.

'Oryx and Cake' describes a period-not far from our own where several aspects of life are quite similar, thereby allowing the render a sense of familiarity along a sensible progression of time. The society as depicted in 'Oryx and Cake' comprises the privileged classes who thrive in closely guarded settlements and those who live around these areas in lesser favorable circumstances. The rich sell that wares to these less fortunate people, referred to in the story as 'pleebs', whereby the latter is clearly at the losing side of the bargain. The rich controlled the society through genetic fiddling and maintained a strict oversight over resources such as food and livestock. In fact, the 'pleebs' are even shown to be subjected to deliberate introduction of engineered diseases, forcing them to rely on medicines that have

This is the culture into which the protogonist, Jimmy, is born into and is part of a privileges family that is dependent on the income of a low-level professional in a genetic firm. ## ATWOOD ORYX Y CRAKE

Oryx and Crake Summary and Analysis of Chapter 8 Summary

SoYummie

Jimmy and Crake graduate together from HelthWyzer High in February. The ceremony was traditional—outdoors featuring many formal hats and festive foods. Crake was at the top of the class and as such was recruited by the Watson-Crick Institute, the equivalent of Harvard. Jimmy, an average student with high verbal yet poor math skills, had finally gained entrance to the Martha Graham Academy. Jimmy suspected that he only gained entrance to Martha Graham thanks to a connection his father had with the president of the school.

Jimmy's father had married Ramona. After so many years, Jimmy's father was finally able to divorce his mother due to her absence. During the wedding, Jimmy had been drunk and stayed to himself. It bothered him that perhaps Ramona and his father would have a child together, a child that would undoubtedly be far superior to Jimmy. Crake had carried him to his room that night.

Jimmy congratulated Crake at graduation. The only family member present to celebrate with Crake was Uncle Pete. He tried to stay as far away from Crake as possible. Crake's mother had died the month prior. It was suspected that it was an accident—somehow she had become infected with a killer virus, more than likely at the hospital. Crake could not go visit her because she was in isolation. He watched her die through the window. Jimmy could not understand why Crake was so emotional detached from his mother's death.

Happicuppa

Following graduation Jimmy was invited to spend some time at Uncle Pete's place in the Moosonee HelthWyzer Gated Vacation Community. Uncle Pete spent most of his time playing golf, leaving Jimmy alone with Crake. They spent their time watching the wars being fought over the new Happicuppa bean. The creation of the bean pushed many small growers out of business. Riots had broken out worldwide. Crake was disturbed by the destruction of forests fueling the planting of the beans. A Boston Coffee Party occurred, protestors dumped crates of the bean in the harbor.

He is enforceable, listening to the sea © Entering, waving after wave passing over barricades, desire washing, desire washing, the rhythm of the heartbeat. He would like to believe that he is still sleeping. On the eastern horizon, there is a gray fly, illuminated now with a pink and deadly shine. Strange how this color still looks soft. The offshore towers stand out in a dark silhouette against her, emerging improvable from pink and pink blue of the lagoon. The screams of the paddasaries that nest out and the distant ocean grinding the rusty car ersatz reefs and confused bricks and a varied rubble sound almost like a cheese of fan. By hijuction, he looks at the guard - stainless steel case, a polished alumanium band, still brilliant, although it does not work more. He now uses it as his so -called talisman. A blank face is what shows: zero hour. This makes a shock of terror travel it, this lack of official time. No one knows what time. "Calm down," he says to himself. He breathes some deep breaths, then scratches his insect bites, but not in the most committed places, being careful to take a crust: blood poisoning is the last thing he needs. Then he examines the chonhow below in search of wild animals: all silent, without scales and tails. Left mom, right, right, left, he descends from the ruling. After taking off the branches and peel, he wraps the dirty slogan of himself as a toga. He hung his Bonhão © Automantic Baseball Red Sox Red Sox in a branch at night to protect; He checks inside him, throws a spider, puts it. He walks a few meters from the left irritates shrubs. "Answer," he tells the grasshoppers to move away from the impact. Then he he .  $\mathring{N}$   $\mathring$ remember the rest of the sentence. He sits on the sloop and starts eating his sleeve. Flotsam on White Beach, Choir Moádo and broken bones, a group of children is walking. They must be swimming, still wet and shining. They should be more careful: perhaps what can infest the lagoon? But they are incapable; envy or is nostalgia? The sea when children, never ran on a beach without clothes. The children examine the ground, lean, take the flotsam; Discarding others; his treasures come into a torn bag. Sooner or later - he can count on that - they seek him where he sits wrapped in his decomposition, open, open Giving their shins and sucking their sleeve under the shadow of the rivers because of the punitive sun. For children - with thick skin, resistant to ultraviolet - he is a creature of darkness, from crepe. Here they go now. "Snowman, oh snow doll," they sing their sung way. They are never very close to him. This is out of respect, how would he like to think, or why he stinks? (He stinks, he knows this enough. He is classified, he is gamy, he smells like a oily - oily, salty, suspicious - no one smelled to a beast. But he saw photos.) Opening Their bag, the choir children, "oh snow doll, what do we find?" They raise the objects, hold them as if they are offering them for sale: a cap, a piano key, a pedaulut of the ocean-green pop bottle. A Blysspluss Plastic container, empty; A bucket of chickienobs o'nubbins, idem. A computer mouse, or the remains stuck in one, with long tail and fibata. He feels the need to hear a human voice, like his. Sometimes he laughs like a lemon - his idea of a lemon. He used to watch ancient DVDs of such creatures when he was a child: those animal behavior programs that characterize the stamp and the nursing and the innards, and to lick their young people. Why did he find them so comforting? Either he grunted and squeals like a pigeon, or howling like a wolvog: aroo! Arooo! So many crucial events occur through the back of people, when they are not in a position to watch: birth and death, for example. And the temporary forgetfulness of sex. "Don't even think about it," he says to himself; He used to run, exercises at the gym. Now he can see his ribs: he is losing. Animal protein is not enough. A woman's voice says caressing him, beautiful! It is not oryx, it is another woman. Oryx is not more talkative. "Say anything," he begs. She can hear him, he needs to believe it, but she is giving him the silent treatment. "What can I do?" He asks her. "You know me ..." Oh, good Abdan men! Come the whisper, interrupting.
